Green Teas

Bancha Hojicha -Japan Roasted	Bancha is a classic Japanese large-leaf green tea made from the lower shoots of the tea plant. It contains substantially less caffeine than Sencha teas which are made from young shoots. Bancha Hojicha is made by roasting the Bancha leaves at high temperature until they turn reddish-brown. Filled with aromatic flavours, with roasted and nutty notes. This tea can be enjoyed with a slice of lemon or orange.
Bi Luo Chun -Taiwan	Translated 'Green Spiral Leaves of Spring'. Once infused, this tea boasts an outstanding distinctive moist crisp fruity aroma. Peach, apricot and plum trees are planted among the bushes, when these fruit trees bloom, the tender spouts and buds of the tea absorb the aromas. This tea has a lingering sweet aftertaste.
Four Seasons Spring -Taiwan	Four Seasons Spring Green tea is a great representation of a light fermented tea of about 15% fermentation level. It is crisp and sweet with hints of peach and grass feelings. Full of fragrance and flavour. Tea leaves are rolled to a tight hemispherical shaped ball. Excellent for multiple infusions, this green tea is great for all occasions. Lively and with a sense of brightness to start the day, the thrust of vitality of Spring lays within every cup.
Genmaicha -Japan	Genmaicha means 'Natural Rice Tea'. Japanese sencha tea is blended with roasted and popped rice giving it a pleasant, nutty flavour. Although it can be enjoyed at any time of the day, The Japanese prefer to drink this tea in the afternoon. It has low caffeine and a mild flavour with a warm feeling.
Gunpowder Organic -China	Green tea leaves slowly dried and rolled into a tight ball, the name was given to this type of tea some 150 years ago by the transporter of tea and sailors of the sea. Its name remained strong and the popularity of the tea grew worldwide. The variation of Gunpowder is organically certified.
Gunpowder Pearls -China	Green tea leaves slowly dried and rolled into a tight ball, the name was given to this type of tea some 150 years ago by sailors on the tea ships when the teas were shipped from the East to the West. The name remained strong and the popularity of the tea grew with time.
Gunpowder Temple of Heaven -China	Gunpowder tea is dried slowly in rotating drums to form a tightly-rolled ball. It has a slightly dry and fresh flavour, but if the tea seems too bitter, a first short infusion should be poured off and the second infusion should be used. For a classic North African-style taste, steep with a handful of fresh mint. A well noticeable, rich, nutty green tea with an oaky aroma.
Gyokuro Classic	Best representative of the greenness and grassiness of Gyokuro.
Gyokuro Exclusive -Japan	This is a top-class Japanese Sencha tea which is also known as 'Dew of Pearl' or 'Most Exquisite Dew Drop'. The tea plants grow in the shadow of broad leaved trees. The plants are shaded with bamboo mats for two weeks before plucking to boost the chlorophyll content and the green character of the tea. It has a high caffeine content and low tannin. The infusion is mild and typically tangy.
Konacha -Japan	Popular tea to resonate with Sushi. It is well-known for its strength, colour, flavour, sweetness and aroma, and it is a good tea for cooking.
Longjing (Dragon Well) -China	This well-known fine green tea is also called 'Dragon Well' or 'Longjing'. It has a very distinct shape for a green tea, with flattened leaves with fine white hair and smooth appearance, it manifests a nutty, sweet, buttery and creamy sensation before experiencing a fresh and tender aftertaste.
Matcha Powder -Japan	Top buds are hand plucked to dry. Dried tea leaves are then stone ground to reveal ultra green-ness of the tea. Stone grinding is an art much like making ceramic. This high grade Matcha has intense sweetness with deep colour and flavour making it perfect to incorporate into baking as one of the most natural ways of food colouring.
Sencha Fukujyu -Japan	A middle-grade Sencha from Shizuoka on the slopes of Mount Fuji. Sencha means "steamed tea" because the tea is lightly steamed before rolled and dried. The goal is to preserve the freshness and the green character of the tea leaf. It has a distinctive, strong, green tea character.
Thailand Green	Wild harvested in the Mountains of Tenasserim in the Royal Kingdom of Thailand bordering Myanmar. Harvested from rural communities to manifest fruitiness, grassiness, sweetness and woodiness.
Vietnam Green	Produced in the North mountains of Kingdom of Vietnam, grassiness and woodiness resonates in the cup with a little resemblance of sweet spice... Great pairing with sweet dishes.
Wenshan Baozhong -Taiwan	A lightly fermented tea, with a stripe-shaped appearance and natural crinkles, this tea is sweet in aroma and light floral notes. Long smooth and lingering aftertaste accompanies every sip of this wondrous tea.
Yunnan Green -China	Sweet in aroma and a sensation of light floral notes, it has a long, smooth and lingering aftertaste.

Oolong Blue Teas

Ali High Mountain Oolong -Taiwan	Famous for superior High Mountain tea cultivation in Taiwan, Ali Mountain unleashes its abilities of gradual unlocking of aroma and flavours, making it ideal for multiple infusions. Each infusion bringing out a different energy, taste, feeling, story and experience, this tea can be the perfect example of the four elements and seasons. Always unpredictable on where you go or how long you go for on your exciting tea adventure, it is the best tea to find your answers. Maximum 2 leaves and one bud are hand plucked to dry with delicacy to reveal the mosaic of floral, woody and sweet aroma and flavours. Aroma and flavours change with every infusion, so fragrance and drinking cups are used to appreciate this unique tea experience.
Dong Ding Oolong -Taiwan	One of the finest Formosa Oolongs, Dong Ding stands for 'Frozen Peaks' indicating high altitude tea plantation of the highest quality. Being hand-plucked in Taiwan, this tea is well-known for its exceptional fragrance, full body, slight fruitiness, mild sweetness and irresistible reminiscent of a mouth-watering peach. Excellent for multiple infusions.
Milky Jin Shuan Oolong -Taiwan	Newly cultivated tea tree in Nantou and Chiayi, Taiwan., these thick and plump leaves are freshly tender with a lustrous emerald green colour, hence the name "Milky Oolong". The taste is pure and smooth with an elegant, subtle, milky sweet flavour and a floral aroma, it produces excellent flavour with up to seven infusions.
Oolong Classic -Taiwan	Oolong is the famous tea category between lightly fermented (Green) and fully fermented (Black). Pure, sweet, lingering and aromatic drink, the best oolong of its kind are grown in high Mountains of cloud. Best known for its nature of multiple steeping as well as its accompanying tea ceremony.
Oolong Organic -Taiwan	High Mountain Oolong, organically grown in the Mountains of cloud, it leaves sweet, grassy and lingering sensations... Aromatic and ceremonial.
Oriental Beauty -Taiwan	Also known as 'Bai Hao', 'Pong Hong Dei', 'White-Haired Oolong Tea' or 'Champagne Formosa' - this is the finest of some of the best oolong in Taiwan. Locals also named it 'You must be Joking Tea' after an interesting tea making accident. This highly oxidised tea boasts a sweet smooth taste with a slightly baked and floral aroma partnered with a somewhat fruity and honey scent. The origin of its name dates back to the early 20th century when a British tea merchant presented a sample of this tea to Queen Victoria who then named it 'Oriental Beauty'.
Te Guan Yin -Taiwan	Te Kuan Yin, also known as 'Iron Goddess of Mercy' is traditionally grown in Fujian Province, it is produced from a specific type of tea bush. This oolong has fine, dark leaves that produce an infusion with a sweet, roasty flavour and a long aftertaste. It produces excellent flavour with up to five infusions.

Scented Oolong

Dang Gui Oolong -China Scented	Top-quality, semi-fermented tea scented with Dang Gui root. Dang Gui root is one of many Chinese Angelica Roots well known for thousands of years in China, Japan and Korea for its sweet and rooty flavour, and its very unique nature.
Ginseng Oolong -China Scented	Ginseng literally means 'Man Root'. Well-known for its uplifting blood circulation and energy, the ginseng roots are flavoured into the oolong to produce an amazing combination of sweet and earthy tones. Distinct spicy, minty, sweet and crisp aftertaste.
Jasmine Bai Hao -China Scented	A top-quality, semi-fermented tea which has been scented with Jasmine blossoms. The blossoms have been removed, leaving the tea with a delightful Jasmine flavour and scent. This tea was formerly reserved for the use of the Imperial Court, and a small taste will confirm that this is clearly not your typical Jasmine.
Jasmine Dragon Phoenix Pearls -China Scented	A limited production, top quality jasmine tea from the Chinese province of Fujian. This famous tea is made from tender and healthy green tea shoots hand-picked in spring. Long leaf tips are scented with freshly cut jasmine blossoms and are then rolled into small pearls. The pearls seem to dance as they unfurl in the pot.
Liquorice Jin Shuan Oolong -Taiwan	This blend is a connection of liquorice roots and Milk Jin Shuan... These thick and plump leaves are freshly tender with a lustrous emerald green colour. The taste is pure and smooth with an elegant, subtle, milky sweet flavour and a floral aroma, hence the name "Milky Oolong". It produces excellent flavour with up to seven infusions.
Osmanthus -Taiwan Scented	Oolong has a wide range of fermentation between 25% and 70%. This oolong manifests a fermentation at around 40%. This is a traditional speciality of the province of Gangxi in the south of China. Small-leafed oolong tea leaves are mixed with fresh Osmanthus blossoms before they are dried together. Well-known for its relaxation and digestive properties, the yellow infusion has a mild, fruity flavour and reminiscent of caramel. Osmanthus blossoms are amongst three of the most well-known blossoms in the East, together with Jasmine and Chrysanthemum flowers. Osmanthus blossoms are harvested early in the morning between 4 and 7am to reflect the best aromatic qualities for the scenting of this oolong, so due to the semi-fermented category of this fine oolong, it will last multiple infusions to as much as 5 consecutive infusions. The first few infusions represent grassy green tea and the last few infusions represent woodiness of black tea...
Rose Oolong -Taiwan	A beautiful blend of rose petals and Taiwanese Oolong brings forth the floral, grassy and sweet notes of the high mountains.

Black Teas

African Breakfast Black Tea Blend	Elegant blending of black teas from African origins such as Kenya, Malawi and Tanzania... the presentation of smartness, strength and aroma in each cup. An experience like no other.
Assam Bukhial TGFOP1 -India	Assam full leaf 2nd flush tea has a typical strong and earthy flavour. Bukhial is a tea estate belonging to and managed by George Willamson Assam Ltd - the world's largest privately held tea plantation group in India. Bukhial is situated on the south side of the Brahmaputra River in the state of Assam near a remote region called Nagaland. Wild elephants still roam the estate, but it could be worse: a century ago headhunters also lurked in the forests! In this area, rainfall is lower, so the bushes grow more slowly resulting in an outstanding tea. This well-made orthodox leaf tea produces a strong, matured and flavourful cup.
Assam Hajua GFBOP1 -India	Assam broken leaf tea of good quality with rich woody, earthy and grounding-flavour and complex aroma., this tea is greatly suited for tea drinkers aiming for stronger taste and perhaps milk. Great pairing this tea with earthier and heavier food ingredients like black mushrooms and smoked foods. Assam is sometimes referred as the Earth of Tea in India.
Assam Harmutty SFTGFOP1 -India	The Harmutty Estate in the Brahmaputra Valley of North East India possesses perfect conditions for growing Assam teas, where the high precipitation levels and all year round high temperatures aid the production of this particular Assam black tea glowing with bright golden earthy colours.
Ceylon FOP -Sri Lanka	Grown in the heart of Sri Lanka where one finds the vast tropical tea plantations, this tea has a fine leaf with silver coloured tips and has a full-flavoured taste producing a dark amber cup.
Ceylon Pettiagalla OP -Sri Lanka	This fine Ceylon comes from the Dimbula area in the Sri Lankan Balangoda District. Thanks to its excessive moisture in rainy seasons and ultra fertile topography, a dark red colour, highly aromatic and simultaneously mild taste is the combination of the outcome of this fine Ceylon. The infusion is equally excellent without milk, which makes Ceylon an excellent representation of a fully-fermented tea of a black tea category, with a fermentation level of about 95%.
Darjeeling 1 st Flush -India	First flush teas are from the spring harvest. First flush Darjeelings are aromatic teas with a light, fresh and flowery taste reminiscent of muscatel or green almonds. Darjeelings are termed as the Heaven of tea in India... Light, crisp and beautiful lingering sensations.
Darjeeling 2 nd Flush -India	Darjeeling produces the most refined of the Indian teas. Second flush Darjeelings are from the main summer plucking, are of stronger character than the spring plucking and are highly aromatic.

Darjeeling Happy Valley Organic	Tea Estate established back in 1854 in the North of the Darjeeling region, it is one of the oldest Darjeeling growing areas. Seated at an altitude of more than 2000m above sea level over looking the city of West Bengal, it is the highest tea factory in the world producing a delightful, grassy, elegant tea for the sweet and memorable experience.
Darjeeling Margaret's Hope FTGFOP 1st Flush -India	In the 1930's, this Indian garden was owned by Mr. Bagdon, who, with his two daughters, sailed from England to India to visit the garden. The younger daughter, Margaret, fell in love with the estate and hoped some day she could return, but during the return trip to England, Margaret took ill and died. In her memory, her father changed the garden's name to Margaret's Hope. A delicate lingering fruity muscatel flavour with delicious dryness aftertaste.

Darjeeling Puttabong SFTGFOP1 <sup>1st</sup> Flush	Puttabong is one of Darjeelings most prestigious estates. The tea is a typical first flush tea, with its carefully rolled leaves producing a light, aromatic and flowery infusion.
English Breakfast Blend	Teas that originated in Kenya, Sri Lanka and India is used to create a balanced, full-bodied, aromatic tea with sweet, fruity notes. Wonderful tea to start the day.
Irish Breakfast Blend	This blend of tea is traditionally strong and brewed with intensity and enjoyed normally with sugar and milk. The teas used in the blend are from Assam regions to produce deep red colours.
Keemun Luxus Congou -China	Keemun is produced in Anhui province, near Shanghai. This is a sub-tropical region, and the teas are grown at altitudes of 1,000m. Famous for centuries, Congou refers to the fifth leaf from the top of the tea plant, indicating depth, strength and maturity. The Keemun infusion is a brilliant red with a mild, sweet taste and a subtle scent of orchids.
Kenya Marinyn GFOP1	Kericho, west of the Rift Valley produces most of Kenya's orthodox teas. Since Kenya's independence, the large European tea estates have been converted into many small family owned tea farms. Tea is harvested and processed in one of several processing plants. Marinyn is blended with teas from several estates and has the style of a Darjeeling. The neatly twisted, golden tippy leaves steep to a bright, robust, medium-bodied tea with a slight fruity and floral taste.
Kenya Marinyn GFBOP1	As per above Kenya Marinyn GFOP. In this case, the full leaves are broken which produce a slightly more intense infusion.
Maasai Breakfast Black Tea	Inspired through the tea regions of Tanzania and Kenya, the creation of this strong blend of black tea reveals strength, powerful energy and sense of earth, just like the Maasai people of Southern Kenya and Northern Tanzania.

Pu-Erh Red Teas

Pu-Erh Royal 2009 -China	This tea is grown in the Chinese province of Yunnan. The young leaves and buds from old trees are hand harvested and carefully selected in early months of the year between February and March to capture the most tender part of Pu-Erh. The appearance is unique and distinct with golden yellow aged buds because the tea leaves undergo a very unique process with traditional fermentation stages in humid condition. In the history of Pu-Erh, all Royal Pu-Erhs were used for the offering of Chinese imperial for hundreds of years. They were used for diplomatic gifting, therefore commonly known as the 'Treasure Pu-Erh' or 'Tribute Tea'. This vintage cup is deep red, with a distinctive, earthy taste and an unforgettable experience.
Pu-Erh Pearls -China	Each Pu-Erh Pearl is compressed and formed to ferment for a further 3 years to reveal wonderful earthy, smooth and comforting impressions.
Pu-Erh 1999	Pu-Erh is formally known and grown in the Chinese province of Yunnan, and it is well-known in Asia for its medicinal properties. The processing is unique - the leaves are pressed and undergo a longer fermentation stage before being cellared and re-fermented under humid conditions, sometimes for several years. Top quality Pu-Erh teas are sold at auction for high prices. The cup is deep red with a distinctive, earthy taste.
Pu-Erh Tea Cake Raw	Hand picked from unattended old tea trees that are 80 to 100 years old. Expertly hand-processed, these cakes offer a classic Yi Wu mountain taste often described as balanced with notes of light fruitiness, leafy, woody and a somewhat wheaty, malty and full-of-mouth feel with an aroma that is strong and sweet. This cake is one of our more pungent style raw cakes, yet still offers fruity notes with a lingering, soft finish. Limited production, each cake is sold individually at approx. 380g.
Pu-Erh Tea Cake Ripe	Ripe Pu-Erh involves an induced fermentation to arouse the colour. This process was first introduced to the tea world back in 1973, ensuring the consistency of fermentation of the leaves to produce a soupy drink that is round and strong flavoured while maintaining every goodness of the Pu-Erh. Limited production, each cake is sold individually at approx. 380g.
Chrysanthemum Pu-Erh -China	Pu-Erh is formally known and grown in the Chinese province of Yunnan. It is well-known in Asia for its medicinal properties. The processing is unique - the leaves are pressed and undergo a longer fermentation stage before being cellared and re-fermented under humid conditions, sometimes for several years. Top quality Pu-Erh teas are sold at auction for high prices. When flavoured with famous yellow or red chrysanthemum flowers, an infusion of perfection is discovered to combine the worlds of earthiness and sweet floral scents.
